

NOTES OF GRATITUDE

It's a very stressful time for teachers and families, but they continue to push on during the pandemic. Writing a thank you letter to our hardworking teachers, or families affected by the pandemic is a great way to show your appreciation.

Writing to Teachers and Families

You can choose to write to the families who are receiving food from our Delivering with Dignity program, teachers in the community, or both! We ask that you specify and separate the letters that are going to each group. UWNNS will share notes turned in to us with local teachers and families.

Teachers

School has just started and many teachers are adapting to the new learning challenges that the current pandemic has brought. Classrooms that are being taught virtually or non virtually are still facing big changes that can be difficult to adapt to. Writing an encouraging note can remind teachers why they're so valuable

Families

Many families are facing hardships during the COVID-19 pandemic. With no security in jobs, shelter, and food, there is a lot to stress about right now. Luckily, some qualify for our Delivering with Dignity program that sends meals to our most vulnerable Nevadans. Writing an encouraging note can help them keep going during the pandemic

Express Your Gratitude

This is a great opportunity to express your gratitude, and be creative with words. You can make as many cards as you like during this project. We recommend writing at least 5-10 letters total. Your letters can be hand written, typed, include fun colors, fun paper designs, the choice is yours! Be as creative as you like, and use encouraging language.
